Board OKs a 14.7% tuition increase to conclude 5-year federal agreement

The Board of Trustees voted during University Week to increase tuition by $350, an action that completes a five-year agreement among Gallaudet, the National Technical Institute for the Deaf (NTID) and the U.S. Department of Education (ED).

The vote was the major action item on the board's agenda during the University Week meetings. The increase constituted a "pro forma" move to fulfill a mandate issued by ED to raise the tuition of both Gallaudet and NTID into the top quarter of tuition levels at land-grant institutions. That mandate has required Gallaudet to increase tuition by roughly 130 percent since 1981, or $350 each year.

Total tuition charges for 1987-88 will be $2,734, up from $2,384 last year—an increase of 14.7 percent. "This is far above the national average [for tuition increases], which is about 7 to 8 percent," said Jim Barnes, vice president for Administration and Business. With this increase, Barnes added, the agreement between ED and the two institutions expires.

"Now that we're in the top quarter of tuition rates at land-grant institutions, we feel it's time to moderate, to re-examine what will happen next," said Barnes.

The Gallaudet administration is being asked by ED and the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) to compare Gallaudet's tuition rates with those of other private institutions, for the purpose of entering a new agreement in the near future. But, said Barnes, "we believe the land-grant comparison is still the most reasonable and accurate."

Land-grant colleges and universities, established through the Morrill Acts of 1862 and 1890, annually receive appropriations from their state legislatures in order to make education accessible to many and to provide an alternative to the often more expensive private institutions. "We feel Gallaudet was founded on the same principle," said Barnes. "Because of Gallaudet's unique mission of serving hearing impaired individuals, we should not be charging excessive tuition rates." Gallaudet administrators expect to have a meeting soon with ED and OMB to discuss this issue in more detail.

Overall, with room, board and student fee increases included, students can expect a 9.1 percent increase on their 1986-87 academic year student charges. This includes increases of 2 percent for room costs and 1.8 percent for board. The unit fee—which supports student activities—has not changed since 1981.

Also included in the overall increase is a new fee: $50 for Student Health Services. "Most colleges and universities charge a health service fee," said Barnes. "We haven't, until now, and Gallaudet's health service is probably one of the most heavily used in the country."

The $50 fee will help fund 20 percent of the Student Health Services budget. It should also provide better services for the Northwest Campus and jobs for students because of the impending establishment of an after-hours student driver service on the two campuses.

Gallaudet staff, faculty to get salary increases on Dec. 16

In five weeks—on the Dec. 16 pay date—Gallaudet faculty and staff will receive functional salary increases retroactive to Oct. 1.

For staff members the increase will be approximately 5 percent; for faculty it will be about 5.5 percent.

Securement of the federal funds for the increase began some 18 months ago, when Gallaudet officials submitted the University's budget requests through the U.S. Department of Education (ED).

According to Jim Barnes, vice president for Administration and Business, Gallaudet's budget request was "only for salary money, because that is our first priority. We can't get those increased monies anywhere else except through the federal government."

Barnes said that salaries for Gallaudet faculty members are "trailing the market by a significant degree. We rank seventh out of eight institutions for faculty salaries." Staff salaries, he said, "rank very well compared with other institutions."

The Reagan administration presented Gallaudet's budget request to Congress as part of the ED's total request. The House agreed to a budget increase of $400,000 over the FY '86 budget of $59,335,000, plus a $1 million endowment program. That appropriation then went to the Senate.

While the bill was held up there, President Jerry C. Lee met with Senator Lowell Weicker Jr. (R-Conn.), chair of the Senate Subcommittee on the Handicapped, to argue Gallaudet's case for a larger appropriation. The Senate converted the $1 million endowment program to operations funding, and added another $1,265,000 for a total proposed increase of $2.665 million. A House-Senate conference committee eventually agreed to this increase, bringing Gallaudet's total federal budget to $62 million.

"Our argument right along has been about the faculty salaries and about the whole compensation policy," said Barnes. "We want to stay very competitive with other colleges and universities in all of our compensation programs."

The total federal budget satisfies all Gramm-Rudman-Hollings restraints, said Barnes. "We believe there will be no cuts for Gallaudet this year similar to those in fiscal year 1986."

The completion of pay increase information for staff and faculty, scheduled to be distributed during the middle of this month, is only one part of the complicated process for dispersing the monies. Personal Action Forms (PAFs) must be processed not once but twice, for the basic increase and the retroactive increase. With about 1,280 staff and faculty, that adds up to more than 2,500 "pay transactions" in all.

The PAF information then has to be entered into computers before going to a payroll service that the University uses. Because there are three paychecks in December, because it is a short work month with winter break, and because other year-end reporting must also be completed, the next few weeks will be especially busy ones for all persons involved with payroll.

DOSS officers capture male suspect in early morning stakeout and chase

A young man in his 20s was the object of an early morning pursuit that started on campus and involved both Department of Safety and Security (DOSS) and D.C. Metropolitan Police officers on Nov. 4.

The man, a suspect in break-ins and damage to as many as 24 cars on campus and possibly elsewhere in Washington, was captured at 2 a.m. several blocks from Gallaudet in a residential area. Two DOSS officers received minor injuries when the man resisted arrest.

Floyd Holt, director of DOSS, said about four DOSS officers were staked out at an area on campus where it was anticipated the break-ins might occur next. The mode of operation for previous break-ins on campus had been similar: windows were smashed, items in plain view were stolen, and the acts were usually committed between the hours of 2 and 5 a.m.

At 1:57 a.m., DOSS officers spotted a man climbing over the West Virginia Avenue fence onto the campus. He began checking out cars as DOSS officers observed him closely.

When he entered a vehicle, the DOSS force moved in. Metropolitan Police were called for backup support as the man began running away, and officers pursued him on foot and by police vehicle.

At press time, the man was classified as a John Doe because he refused to give his identity. Metropolitan Police were running a check on his fingerprints to determine whether he has been involved in other offenses.

Holt said car break-ins have been occurring since the beginning of the semester, but only recently have police officials been able to determine a pattern in the offenses.

Kevin Canning and Danny Lucero (kneeling, center) rehearse with other cast members of the Theatre Arts Department's production of "Animal Farm." The play is scheduled to open at Elstad Auditorium on Nov. 14.

Barnyard activity returns to campus in musical version of 'Animal Farm'

In an era now past, Gallaudet housed a working farm which included a dairy, horses, chickens, pigs, orchards and cornfields.

Gallaudet will once again become the site of barnyard activity when the Theatre Arts Department presents the musical version of George Orwell's "Animal Farm."

The play, directed by William Moses, is scheduled for Nov. 14, 15, 21 and 22 at 8 p.m. in Elstad Auditorium.

Gallaudet's early farm characters (the farm was dissolved in 1954) were all four-legged. The 1980's version of "Animal Farm" gives two-legged creatures the opportunity to play the roles of Farmer Jones' oppressed animals who revolt in an attempt to gain control over their own lives.

Orwell's satire, adapted for the stage by Peter Hall with lyrics by Adrian Mitchell and music by Richard Peaslee, was first performed in 1984 by the National Theatre of Great Britain.

Tickets are $2.50 for children and students (including sign language student) and $4.50 for others. Gallaudet students are admitted free with I.D.

Box office hours are as follows: Nov. 10-13, 2-5 p.m.; Nov. 14, 2-8 p.m.; Nov. 15, 5-8 p.m.; Nov. 17-20, 2-5 p.m.; Nov. 21, 2-8 p.m.; and Nov. 22, 5-8 p.m.

For reservations, call x5502 (TDD) or x5500 (V).

Senate approves calendar proposal

The first meeting of the University Faculty Senate was held Oct. 27.

Actions taken by the Senate included passing a motion by William Marshall, professor of administration and supervision and senate vice chair, to approve a Committee G (Academic Standards and Admissions) proposal of a 70-day semester class calendar for the academic year 1987-88. The motion included beginning the fall semester as close to Labor Day as possible.

Under the new calendar, pending approval by the Central Administration, fall semester classes would begin Sept. 3 and end Dec. 14, with final exams running from Dec. 16 to 21. Spring semester classes would begin Jan. 25 and end May 6, with finals from May 10 to 14.

The senate also tentatively accepted guidelines by Committee F (Faculty Development) for submitting faculty development proposals. The guidelines will be reconsidered at the April 1987 meeting.

Action was postponed on a proposal by Janet Pray, associate professor and chair of the Department of Sociology and Social Work, to establish a University Council for providing communication between faculty and administration.

"A more precise wording of this proposal, clarifying council membership and specifying to whom faculty council members will report, will be taken up at the next senate meeting," said H. Neil Reynolds, psychology professor and senate chair.

According to Dr. Reynolds, the University Council would consist of faculty and administration representatives. "The council will meet periodically to share information and discuss issues and questions of mutual concern," he said.

November Forum keys on U-Week

A new segment of "President Lee's Forum" will air from Nov. 17 to 21 featuring highlights of University Week activities.

The program, produced by the Department of Television, Film and Photography, can be seen on Channel 33 of the campus cable system. Dr. Lee encourages everyone in the Gallaudet community to view the program, comparing such activity to "taking the time to read a memo from me."

"Forum" and other Channel 33 programs can also be seen on community access channels of local cable companies listed below.

In Maryland: Montgomery (County) Community Television; Howard (County) Cable Television; and Prime Cable and MetroVision, both in Prince Georges County.

In Virginia: Jones Intercable, Alexandria; and Arlington Community Television.

Viewers should check local listings for dates and times of broadcasts.

Rep. David Bonior (D-Mich.) (right, center) receives the Service to Mankind award from the Gallaudet Chapter of the Sertoma Club. Participating in the presentation are (from left) Eli Savanick, Sertoma Club past president; Mervin Garretson, club board chairman; and Jim Barnes, club president. Rep. Bonior is a member of the Gallaudet University Board of Trustees.

Cruises, dinners, computers, books: SOCAP auction offers heart's desire

Interested in a four-day vacation in Nassau? A weekend for two at the Willard Intercontinental Hotel?

How about a set of the 1986 Encyclopedia Britannica or a Uni-PC/XT with RGB color monitor for you stay-at-home types? A professional financial plan for the very practical?

Whether the heart warms to cruises, dinners at the best places, or material things such as cookware, jewelry, cameras, original paintings—or even dental work—there's something for everyone at the second annual Charity Auction to benefit Gallaudet University to be held Thursday, Nov. 20.

The auction, sponsored by the Washington, D.C. chapter of the Society of Consumer Affairs Professionals (SOCAP), will be held in the NRECA building, 1800 Massachusetts Avenue NW. A silent auction and light buffet begins at 6 p.m., with Don Pettingill, Tom Doyle and Bernard Bragg, all of University Relations, participating as auctioneers. A live auction will begin at 7:20 p.m.

Those attending the auction will be asked to donate $10. Anyone wishing to donate an item is urged to contact Don Pettingill in EMG 204, x5006, as soon as possible.

Mary Louise Stansfield

Stansfield begins as VC coordinator

Mary Louise Stansfield moved to her new position as coordinator of the Gallaudet University Visitors Center just prior to Gallaudet's change in status.

"We anticipate an increase in the center's activities as a result of university status," said Stansfield, a former coordinator with Experiential Programs Off Campus. "One of our priorities now is maximizing our full-time staff, including adding a new assistant coordinator for Pre-College Programs. We also plan to increase our excellent volunteer corps."

"Another immediate goal is strengthening ties with the various campus departments to keep informed of current events," she said. "Our staff invites information and feedback from individuals on campus on enhancing services to visitors."

Stansfield holds a bachelor's degree in sociology and Spanish from Douglass College, Rutgers University, and a master's degree in rehabilitation counseling from Gallaudet.

Markwith offers thanks for campus cooperation

In the wake of widespread media coverage on campus before, during and after University Week, Lou Markwith, vice president of University Relations, said that the positive publicity that Gallaudet received "has made many people across the nation more aware of the institution and its unique mission."

Such publicity was made possible, said Markwith, "because of the outstanding cooperation among members of the University family. Students, faculty and staff had their work interrupted and schedules changed to meet the needs of the press and their deadlines. In all cases the cooperation and patience of the people being interviewed and photographed was the single most important ingredient in producing a successful story."

Markwith, on behalf of the Public Relations staff and other members of University Relations, offered thanks to the students, faculty and staff "for making our jobs easier and a great success."

Day Care Center: Discovery in play

The belief that children learn best by exploration, experimentation and discovery in play is basic to the philosophy of the Gallaudet University Day Care Center. The center's comprehensive design and the children's cheerful busy-ness provide evidence that this belief is well founded.

Campus community members are invited to see for themselves at the center's open house Nov. 20 and 21 from 10 to 11:30 a.m. and 3 to 4 p.m.

"Our purpose is to create a warm environment in which our carefully trained staff educate the 'whole child,' esthetically, socially, emotionally and intellectually—with each child progressing at his or her own pace," said Gail Solit, program coordinator of the center. "Feedback from parents has been very positive."

The center, located in the Appleby Building at the corner of Florida Avenue and Sixth Street, is licensed through the District of Columbia Department of Human Services. Admission is open to both hearing and hearing impaired children, and simultaneous communication is used.

Fifty children are enrolled in the center. Most are children of Gallaudet employees and students who attend the center full-time. Six children are KDES students "who were selected because they benefit from both programs," according to Solit.

Three teachers, four assistants and a teacher's aide work under the immediate supervision of a head teacher. Staff members work with the children individually or in small groups. The children may select participation in areas of interest such as language arts, stories, music and movement. "Formal learning periods are brief and dispersed throughout the daily schedule," said Solit.

"Two of our current goals are gaining accreditation of the National Academy of Early Childhood Programs and establishing an advisory committee of parents and professionals on campus," said Solit.

Readers grade, suggest improvements in On the Green

A total of 284 persons—177 staff, 97 faculty and 10 "others"—responded to last month's On the Green reader survey.

The great majority of respondents said that they read all or most of OTG every week and that the paper keeps them very well or fairly well informed of campus developments. More than 40 percent said that they had submitted something for OTG publication in the past year.

The overall quality and the layout/appearance of OTG were rated "excellent" by nearly half of the 284 persons. Only one-third of the respondents gave an "excellent" rating to "subjects covered." The major complaint about coverage was that OTG "represents the official line," is "too public-relations oriented" or "avoids controversy." Roughly 20 percent of the faculty and 9 percent of the staff had such criticism.

"Announcements" and "Among Ourselves" were rated the most-often-read columns, with more than two-thirds of the respondents saying they always read those. The least popular columns were "Channel 33" (69 percent never or only sometimes read it) and "Sponsored R&D" (50 percent never or only sometimes read it).

The "best thing about On the Green," according to many readers, is its "comprehensive coverage of the whole campus" and its being "informative." Various respondents also appreciated such things as "reliable and dependable," "the April Fools' issue," "professionally done" and "it's free."

The "worst thing about On the Green," besides it representing the "party line" according to some readers, is that "the news is old by the time we get it," that there is "not enough coverage of the Northwest Campus and Pre-College Programs" and "errors and typos."

To illustrate the difficulty in pleasing all the people all the time, about equal numbers of persons liked or disliked the following: humorous articles, sports coverage, stories on students, and length of articles.

Nearly one reader in seven requested more coverage of individual faculty and staff. The second most popular request was for articles on what particular departments and units are doing. Another common request was to cover controversial issues, publish opinion pieces, or start a letters-to-the-editor column.

The On the Green staff appreciates all the feedback and will try to incorporate some if not all of the suggestions in its editorial plans for the next year.

In the following summary of the reader survey results, the numbers are percentages of the 284 respondents.

NOTE: The survey form also listed a "Campus Humor" column which, of course, does not exist. Some readers, as requested, circled that column title to identify it as nonexistent. Others gave the alleged column high marks—perhaps thinking of either the April Fools' issue or other occasional humorous pieces.

Announcements

A memorial service for Polly Shahan, a retired Gallaudet teacher who died Oct. 28, will be held Nov. 16 at 1:30 p.m. at Calvary Baptist Church, 755 Eighth St., NW. Shahan was a member of the faculty from 1952 to 1976, and also served as an interpreter.

Three upcoming workshops are being presented by the Student Union from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the Ely Center art exhibit room as part of "Deaf Consumer Awareness Month." Sheila Conlon-Mentokowski will present "Your Rights as a Deaf Person" on Nov. 11; Roy Seger will present "Your Rights and Responsibility as a Consumer" on Nov. 13; and Reid Horowitz will present "How to Read Warranties and Documents" on Nov. 19. Those interested in attending any of the workshops should contact Hillel Goldberg, x5144, in the Student Union Office.

Saturday night, Nov. 22, will be Disco Night at "Ole Jim." Music will be provided from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. by T.H. Wave with disc jockey Henry Grau. Doors will open at 7 p.m., and admission is $2 per person. There will be free munchies and a cash bar.

Columbia Community Players will present a sign-interpreted performance of Neil Simon's comedy "Chapter Two" on Friday, Nov. 14 at 8:30 p.m. at Slayton House, Wilde Lake Village Center, Columbia, Md. Featured will be an after-theater dessert buffet. For ticket information, call (301) 381-5642 (TDD) through Nov. 13, or Ruth Hershey, 465-0259 (V).

To allow sufficient time to find interpreters for all students wanting to take undergraduate courses through the Washington Consortium of Universities and Colleges, the Office of Honors and Academic Advising announces new deadlines for registration. For spring semester, the deadline is the end of the fall semester, and for all summer sessions and for fall semester, the deadline is the end of spring semester. Students are urged to plan consortium courses early; undergraduate catalogs are available in HMB 151.

Arena Stage is looking for sign language interpreters skilled in theatrical interpreting for this season's performances. Auditions will be held Nov. 24 beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the Old Vat Room at Arena Stage, 6th and Maine Ave. SW. Applicants should call Betty Siegel, chairperson of the Arena Stage Deaf Access Committee, to arrange an audition time. Her number is 554-9066.

The Maryland Department of Employment and Training (DET) is installing TDDs in its branch offices. The first was recently installed in the Greenbelt office; that number is 441-2151. The TDD number for the head office of DET in Baltimore is (301) 383-6994. The office of the attorney general in Baltimore now also has a TDD. The numbers are 565-0451 in the Washington area, and (301) 383-7555 in Baltimore.

Sponsored R&D

Provided below are application deadlines of selected programs that offer potential grant or contract opportunities for faculty, staff and graduate students. More details on these and other programs of interest can be obtained from the Office of Sponsored Programs, x5401 (V/TDD).

Football team goes after new all-time record in season finale here Saturday

Gallaudet's 19-13 victory at Wesley College Nov. 1 tied the all-time record for football wins in one season over collegiate-level teams. Each victory through the remainder of the season will establish an all-time mark.

The Bison's sixth collegiate win of the year tied a record set in 1898 and equaled in 1913 and 1930. The 1898 team holds the record for most season victories (9), but three of those were over high school teams.

The win at Dover, Del. was also the team's fourth in a row, the best since 1924. The 1913 team holds the record for consecutive wins over collegiate-level competition (6). With two games remaining, that record can be equaled.

The victory over Wesley also ensured Gallaudet of its first winning season since 1930 and its eleventh in this century.

The Bison led the Wolverines until the fourth quarter when Wesley tied the game at 13-all. Sophomore tailback Pat Hutson then scored from four yards out to provide the winning margin. Freshman quarterback Jimmy Segala threw for 155 yards and scored Gallaudet's first TD. Senior defensive tackle Ken Killian had 13 tackles and a pass deflection.

Gallaudet closes out the historic 1986 season at home this Saturday against Williamson Tech. The Trojans defeated the Bison 24-6 last year at Media, Pa. in the first meeting of the two schools.

Gallaudet appears to have a good chance to even the series, because the Bison are stronger this year and Williamson Tech has had trouble replacing two stars who graduated in June. The teams have played one common opponent this year. Anne Arundel defeated the Bison 29-13 and the Trojans 20-0.
